

National and Local Meat Business

The meat business of the country is conducted by various agencies—

By small slaughter-houses in villages—
By local Abattoirs or small Packing Houses in towns—both

Using only a part of the local live stock supply

and
Furnishing only a part of the local demand for meat.

These slaughtering and distributing agencies fill a well defined but necessarily restricted place in the distribution of the products of live stock.

But only packers like Swift & Company, organized on a national scale, are able to undertake the service that is more vitally important, involving

An Obligation to the Producer
To purchase for spot cash all the live stock the producer may send to market for slaughter.

An Obligation to the Consumer
To make available to every consumer, everywhere, in season and out, the full supply and variety of meat products, of the highest standard that the market affords.

Our Part in Feeding the Nation

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture.)
FOOD FOR CITIES MUST BE RUSHED.

From the Time Cattle Are Rounded Up for Shipment Until the Roast Reaches Your Refrigerator, the Beef Has Been in a Succession of Grand Rushes.

FEEDING CITIES IS BIG PROBLEM

Study of Some Things Which Affect Final Delivery of Food to Consumer.

QUESTION OF RAPID TRANSIT

Fresh Meats and Other Perishable Products From Farms Must Be Speeded Up at Every Stage—Delay Means Shrinkage.

One of the fundamental factors in the problem of feeding towns and cities is that of transportation. Since city dwellers are so dependent upon transportation for their foodstuffs, it may be interesting to study some of the things which affect the final delivery of food and especially meats to the consumer.

Transportation difficulties begin with the stock raiser, whether he is a rancher in the West, a corn belt farmer or other agriculturist who produces live stock for food. In the early days, before our railroads were in existence or before they were the principal factors in getting stock to market, cattle, hogs and sheep had to be driven or hauled long distances to reach a selling point or a point from which they could be shipped by boat or rail. This was a very expensive way of moving stock; it not only took a long time but the loss of animals and the loss of flesh by these animals was also considerable, even though the values per pound were very little compared with today.

Troubles of Stock Grower.
The first trouble the stock grower or dealer today has in getting his stock to market is to get to a railroad point to ship his animals to one of the various large stockyards to be sold. Bad roads, adverse weather and perhaps a long drive or haul to the shipping point all affect the length of time required; then there may be a temporary shortage of cars and stock must be held in the railroad stockyards and fed until cars are provided. Once loaded into cars, however, there is a special effort made to get to the market in the shortest possible time. Delay means abnormal shrinkage; if the cars are on the road 36 hours the stock must be unloaded for feed and water; or the market may drop suddenly; hence the necessity for speed.

Shipping Fresh Meats.
In order to ship fresh meats successfully today, they must be thoroughly chilled before loading and then transported in refrigerated cars, especially during the warmer weather, although this practice is followed the year round. These cars have ice tanks at each end, which are filled with ice and a percentage of salt and the car chilled to about 35 to 38 degrees Fahrenheit. Also they are provided with ventilating or circulating systems in order to keep the temperature in all parts of the car as nearly uniform as possible. In making long shipments, and especially during the warmer months, it is necessary to ice the car one or more times en route to keep the temperature as low and as constant as possible. Even then on account of bad weather, wrecks or any other condition that causes undue delay, the meat may not be in first-class condition on its arrival at the destination and must therefore be sold quickly even at some sacrifice in price.

Speed Is Essential.
Speed is vital from the time the stock leaves the producer's hands until it reaches the packer and from the time the product, fresh meat, leaves the packing house until it reaches the consumer.

Doan's Kidney Pills Effect Wondrous Recovery After Other Medicines Had Failed.

"I don't believe I would be alive to this testimony if it weren't for Doan's Kidney Pills," says Mrs. Julia A. Thomas, 1125 S. Missouri, East St. Louis, Ill. "I was in a serious condition with kidney trouble; my feet and ankles were terribly swollen and the kidney secretions caused agony in passing. I had terrible rheumatic pains and often got so dizzy I dared not walk for fear of falling. I felt as if I would go frantic. I grew weak as a baby and often had to grasp something to keep from falling. My nerves were so unstrung and the head noise started me. Nothing benefited me and I was discouraged. A neighbor happened to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and I began using them. The swellings and pains were soon eased up and it was but a short time before my kidneys were in good shape again. They have never bothered me since nor have I had any backache or other kidney trouble. I have gained 55 pounds since I was cured and can do all my own work without suffering."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. R. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JUNE 30

REVIEW: JESUS CHRIST OUR REDEEMER AND LORD.

GOLDEN TEXT: For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.
I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

The method of review must largely be determined by the individual teacher. For Junior and Intermediate classes a good way will be by the use of a good map of Palestine, to trace the journeys of Jesus from his birth to his ascension, giving emphasis to some of his vital teachings, deeds of power, and power, and the triumph of resurrection and glorious coming again. Indeed, this method, with some modifications, can be used to good advantage with all grades. A good way for senior and adult classes will be to recall the principal facts of each lesson of the quarter, and state their central and vital teaching as they bear upon the golden text. In such case, each lesson should be assigned one week previous. The following may be suggested as the latter method.

Lesson I.—As Jesus was passing through the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, he was besought by a Syrophenician woman to heal her daughter, who was grievously possessed with a demon. After apparent indifference, in order to lead her on to the point of faith, he healed her daughter. As he further journeyed through Decapolis, a deaf and dumb man besought him for healing. In spite of the fact that he was so soon to be offered up, and other interests that were upon him, he healed this man. In both cases he showed not only his sympathy, but his mighty power over demons and physical diseases.

Lesson II.—As his earthly career was approaching its end, Jesus began to teach his disciples. He wanted the disciples to have definite and personal knowledge as to his person. He knew that the opinions of others would not suffice them in the hours of darkness which were immediately before him. In order to be efficient witnesses they must know that Jesus is the Christ, not merely some great teacher or prophet.

Lesson III.—Jesus was transfigured before Peter, James and John, to show them his triumph over death in his glorious kingdom. This occurred at a time when the disciples were sorely tried. Jesus' rebuke apparently estranged them. He was transfigured "before them," showing that the chief object of transfiguration was to prepare the disciples for the ordeal before them. An inspired commentary upon this translation is found in II Peter 1:16-19.

Lesson IV.—As Jesus was endeavoring to show his disciples how he must be crucified, they were disputing as to who should be the greatest in the kingdom. Jesus taught them that the humble, self-denying service is the sign of true greatness. This is a lesson which needs to be learned by most of us today, as despite our best efforts we note insidious self-seeking making itself known.

Lesson V.—A certain rich man inquired of the Lord as to what he must do in order to inherit eternal life. This young man was of an amiable disposition and earnest and sincere, but he had wrong notions as to salvation. Jesus showed him that his supreme need was not doing something to be saved, but being willing to let go of all things for him. In teaching him this lesson, he made it clear to the young man that he loved money more than the Lord. He, like many today in the hour when decision must be made between this world and Jesus Christ, was away from service.

Lesson VI.—While the Lord was consciously facing the cross, the disciples were concerned about positions of pre-eminence. Jesus taught them that those who would follow him must not seek for greatness or position, but to render lowly service. In this Christ is the grand example. In due time he will exalt those who in lowliness of heart serve him.

Lesson VII.—Jesus drove out the money changers from the temple, and declared that the house of God should be a house of prayer instead of a house of merchandise. This lesson needs to be learned by many churches today. Those who use the church, or the holy religion for both its ends, for financial or social or political interests are polluting the Lord's house, and all such should be driven out.

Lesson VIII.—The scribes sought to entrap Jesus by asking captious questions. To the question as to what was the greatest commandment, he replied that it was love to God with all one's heart, soul, mind and strength. Since this is the first and greatest commandment, to violate this commandment is to be guilty of the greatest sin. Those who do not love God, then, with their entire being, though they may be honest, generous and gracious, are great sinners.

Lesson IX.—While Jesus sat at meat, a certain woman anointed him with precious ointment. In anticipation of his burial, the Lord was pleased with this act, for it was out of a heart of fervent love that she lavished upon him her best.

Lesson X.—In connection with the last Passover, at which Jesus had been crucified, the symbols which represented the body and blood of Jesus were introduced. In the emblems of the communion we appropriate the very life and blessings of Christ.

Lesson XI.—Jesus died between two malefactors to make atonement for the world's sin. He gave his life a ransom for many. While on the cross, he mockingly said he saved others, himself he could not save. He could not save both himself and others, so he chose to save others and give himself to die.

Lesson XII.—Jesus arose from the grave and demonstrated his resurrection with infallible proofs. In this God declared him to be his Son, and set his stamp of approval upon his work. The disciples ought to have rejoiced that the tomb was empty. Had he not arisen, his entire work would have been proven a failure. The resurrection of Jesus Christ and the bodily resurrection of those who are Christ's, is central to the Christian faith.

BIG DEMAND FOR MAHOGANY

Name Commercially Is Applied to More Than Fifty Woods—Substitutes Are Numerous.

The name "mahogany" is applied commercially to more than 50 different woods, says Popular Science Monthly. Perhaps half the lumber now sold under that name is not true mahogany, for the demand greatly exceeds the supply.

The tree is only native to the limited area between southern Florida and northern South America. Nowhere else does it really flourish. But the public will have mahogany. Women want it for furniture, business men prefer it for office fixtures, and teak and mahogany are rivals in the affections of shipbuilders. Therefore substitutes flourish.

It is not surprising that the real wood is so expensive when it is learned that it takes from one hundred to one hundred and fifty years for a mahogany tree to reach merchantable size.

Most of the substitutes bear little more than a general resemblance to the genuine wood, but skillful finishing makes them very much alike. Experts can usually distinguish between them by the aid of an ordinary pocket lens, and the efforts of the superficial, however, to judge the wood by its appearance, weight, grain and color often lead them astray.

FARMERS ARE WORKING HARDER
And using their feet more than ever before. For all these workers the frequent use of Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath, increases their efficiency and insures needed physical comfort. It takes the friction from the shoe, freshens the feet, and prevents tired, aching and blistered feet. Farmers everywhere are constant users of Allen's Foot-Ease. Don't get foot sore, get Allen's Foot-Ease. Sold by dealers everywhere, 25c.—Adv.

Substitute for Lycopodium.
An interesting method is being employed to provide a substitute for lycopodium, the vegetable material formerly obtained from Russia, for coating walls in foundries, to prevent sand from clinging to the castings. The substitute is the dust obtained from the gas discharges of drying apparatus in works where coal or lignite is briquetted, a centrifugal process being employed to precipitate it.—Exchange.

Rights in Grass.
The fact that a tenant does not have the right to walk off and take the lawn with him when he moves from the premises was made clear in a decision handed down by Vice-Chancellor Leaning in Camden, N. J., the other day, deciding against a tenant who had created a lawn by spreading a layer of top soil and who attempted later to carry it away.

Modernizing China.
There is a movement on foot to start an educational propaganda within the German empire, to inform the people of those countries of the real conditions that the other nations of the world make. One writer suggests that the best thing to be done in that direction is to print two or three million copies of the Ten Commandments in the German language and distribute them over the whole of the country by airplanes.—Omaha World-Herald.

Names of Days.
The Roman names of days have undergone little more than a translation in the Saxon and consequently English names. Thus, the first day of the week is Sonnan-day with the Saxons Dies Solis with the Romans. Monday is Monan-day with the Saxons, Dies Lunae with the Romans. Tuesday is, among the Saxons, Tues-day—that is, Tuesco's day—from Tuesco, a mythical person, supposed to have been the first warlike leader of the Teutonic nations; among the Romans it was Dies Martis, the day of Mars, their god of war. The fourth day of the week was, among the Saxons, Woden-day, the day of Woden, or Odin, another mythical being of high warlike reputation among the northern nations, and the nearest in character to the Roman god of war.

Perhaps, Some Day.
Patriotism and local pride may sometimes be stronger than geographical knowledge and perhaps it is as well they should be. Such is the view, in any case, of the teacher of the 5B grade in one of the schools of Indiana, in which a young miss was required to name the capital of the United States. "Indianapolis," she replied. And the capital of Indiana came next. That was easy, too. "Jeffersonville," she said. "Washington" in her mind, all right, however, for another question elicited the information that he is the president of the United States. "Well," she said, "he still keeps his picture on our stamps."

Militant Medicos.
Events in France have led to a shortage of medical men with the army, for it stands to reason that in any toll of prisoners taken a percentage will represent the medical personnel of the forces. And that percentage must often be a high one, as in the zones of the clearing station mobility cannot be a feature.
